COTTON SPOTS AND FUTURES. Special to the Gazette.

GALVESTON, TEX. , June 5. - The spot markets generally closed quiet, steady and firm, Baltimore reducing quotations 1/c. This was the more reducing quotations V_oc. This was the only change, outside of Liverpool. The future market was still fluctuating.

Liverpool futures opened quiet and unchanged, ruled and closed the same; point lower on some months, unchanged as to others.

New York futures opened quiet, but steady, practically unchanged, ruled barely steady at a slight advance, and closed easy for near months, June, July and August 182 points lower, while distant months closed firm, 182 points higher than yesterday's close.

New Orleans futures opened barely steady at a decline from yesterday of 284 points, ruled quiet, but steady at an advance of 184 points over opening, and closed quiet, but steady at a decline all around of 285 points from last closing.

Wool-Firm and unchanged at yesterday's motations, with no transactions.

Coffee and sugar-Both firm and unchanged.

GOVERNMENTS, STOCKS AND BONDS, New York, June 5 .- Stock market was less animated to-day but displayed firm undertone from opening to close, and although there was considerable irregularity shown, almost everything traded in is higher to-night. There is marked absence of pressure to sell, such as has made the dealings of the last week so feverish and weak, and while the demand was moderate it was sufficient, even with the disposition of foreigners, to sell their favorites. Among the features of the day's trading sugar refineties were most prominent. The Missouri, Kanasa and Texas made very little progress in either direction until well into the afternoon, when the infinence of the prospects of the silver bill being passed had a tendency of sending several stocks up sharply, and among the most noted were Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis, Missouri Pacific and Ohio Southern. Vanderbilt stocks were again prominent for strength throughout the day, an served to give firm tone to dealings. The close was quiet and strong, generally at about best prices of the day. The list is almost invariably higher.

Railroad bonds were more active to-day. While the general tone was still firm there was considerable irregularity about the movements, and little special feature. the last week so feverish and weak,

THE HIGHER COURTS.

Synopses of Decisions Rendered at the Present Austin Sitting.

Correspondence of the Gazette. AUSTIN. TRK., June 4.-James W. Tufts vs. T. L. Lawrence & Co., from —— county; opin-ion by Henry, J. On May 9, 1885 appellee placed an order with appellant for a soda water apparatus which had to be manufactured according to appellee's satisfaction. On June 2 the appellee sent a telegram to Tuft, saying "too late, don't send soda fountain," but appellant finished what had to be done to the appellant finished sent it to appellee, who refused to receive it, and suit was instituted to recover for breach of contract. The apparatus had to be manufactured, the contract was, therefore, executory [Benjon sales, 179 and 283] and according to the rule in this state, as laid down in 14 Tex., 420, in an executory contract the property in the thing does not pass to the rendee until the thing is completely finished and either actually delivered, or sat askide to, appropriated to and accepted by the vendee. Tufts had no right to finish the apparatus and ship the same after receipt of the telegram on June 2, repudiating the contract, but in the action for breech of the contract the measure of damages, according to the above doctrine, was the difference between the contract the measure of damages, according to the condition they were when the telegram was received at the place of manufacture. The ent a telegram to Tuft, saying the above doctrine, was the difference between the contract price and the value of the goods in the condition they were when the telegram was received, at the place of manufacture. The evidence shows a clear braech of contract by appelies without excuse, and the verdict of the jury in favor of defendant should have been set aside. Reversed and remanded.

W. P. Whitman vs. Annie Haywood, from Collin county; opinion by Henry, J. The substance of this controversy is as to the true boundary line between two surveys patented in 1853 and 1853 respectively. An elun tree is called for, but as there are two elms, some distance apart, the question is, which is the true one? The court admitted statements on this point of two former owhers of the respective tracts made in 1857, both dead at the time of trial, their statements being to the same effect, but were not made by one in the presence of the other. The admission of this evidence is assigned as error. In 63 Tex. 30, it was held that in matters of boundaries of lands surveyed long ago, and the location of which is von within he mayor of life in the residence of the other. In 68 Tex. 30, it was held that in matters of boundaries of lands surveyed long ago, and the location of which is not within the memory of living men, many facts tending to solve the question are permitted to go the jury which would otherwise be excluded; 49 Tex., 516, is to a similar effect. Based on this, and considering the age of the surveys othe fact that better evidence could not be hid, the fact that the owners of the conflictings berests both made the same declarations than thirty years ago, and their subsections deaths, before the matter became like the evidence was properly admitted. If the order of a competent court for the probate of a will is introduced, then the will is admissible in evidence, and not subject to collateral stack. Affirmed.

Ee order of a competent court for the probate of a will is introduced, then the will is admissible in evidence, and not subject to collateral attack. Affirmed.

The Bankers' and Merchants' Mutual Life Association of the United States vs. Annie M. Stapp, from Grayson country; ophilon by Stayton, C. J. Suit by appellee on certificate of membership in appellant's corporation entitling her to 52000 on death of her husband, which the company failed to pay, and its defense in this smit is that deceased had failed to pay $19 due before membership could be acquired, and that deceased had during his lifetime failed to pay a mortuary assessment of $8.65. The polley contained a clause denying to agenis the power to extend credits, etc. Deceased dealt, however, only with the general manager and secretary of spellant, and they, as officers, had undoubtedly the right to extend credit, notwithstanding the terms of the certificate. [Wood on Ins., 25-15.] The main questions of the case are whether the deceased paid the premium or was given credit thereon, and it is claimed that there was no evidence to sustain a finding in favor of appellee on either of these issues. After a very careful review of the facts in the case and their bearing upon each other, the conclusion is arrived at that it could not be said that there was not evidence requiring the court to submit to the jury whether the premium had not been paid or arrangements for its fature payments satisfactory to the company entered into. And the court is not prepared to hold that there was not evidence requiring the court to submit to the jury whether the premium had not been paid or arrangements for its fature payments satisfactory to the company entered into. And the court is not prepared to hold that there was not evidence requiring the court to submit to the jury whether the premium had not been paid or credit therefor fiven. It is also claimed that the failure to pay the mortuary assessment before the death of plaintiff a husband defeate her right to recover, notwith

tion was made perpetual. Held: The words Microbe Killer are English words, in common use, of known signification and fixed meaning, and wer employed by plaintiff a their ordinary and not in any spiritary or fanciful sense, and we think it is quits clear that the words, as used by Radam, did not constitute a trademark. Plaintiff would be protected, however, if the defendants had intentionally simulated his peculiar device of his labels in a fraudulent way, so as to deceive ordinarily prudent persons. The labels of plaintiff and defendants are so dissimilar, however, that such cannot be the case. Reversed and rendered in favor of Alfi & Co.

Holders will part with no more sugars at old prices, but are now demanding an advance on all grades, which they will doubtless obtain. Buyers at the close are bidding 5.7-16 for 26 deg. centrifugals, which are hold at 34,6. As anticipated, an active demand for refined has sprung up, causing a sharp advance, and the market closes very strong. The prices mow obtained by refiners give them good profits.
